

Distributed Generation Study Tour – Background

The Ministerial de Energias Limpas (CEM, Clean Energy Ministerial) is a global forum of 25 of the world's energy leaders plus the European Union that occurs on an annual basis. It is focused on promoting policies to advance clean energy technology, share lessons learned and accelerate the transition towards a global economy with clean energy. The 21st Century Power Partnership (21CPP) is a CEM initiative with a focus on the proactive planning of the energy transition based on clean energy and targeting electrical systems. During the CEM 9 meeting in Copenhagen a proposal was made by Mexico to organize, in partnership with the 21CPP, a new Campaign called “Accelerating the Adoption of Distributed Generation in Strategic Regions”.

Among the activities supported by the “Accelerating the Adoption of Distributed Generation in Strategic Regions” campaign, such as webinars and reports, there is the realization of a “Distributed Generation (DG) Study Tour” to Colorado, California and Arizona in the United States, to showcase successful applications of policy, regulation, business models, and technical analysis, and explore state of the art research for advancing DG deployment. Experts from utility companies, regulatory and research organizations from the US will be invited to share their experience and expertise in the following topic areas:

- DER Interconnection Processes and Tariffs
- Advanced Utility Rate Structures
- Utility Business Models
- Increasing DER Hosting Capacity
- Utility Grid Modernization Plans for Increased DG
- Pilot Project Initiatives with Customer-Sited Resources

On August 2018, the Latin American Energy Organization (OLADE, in Spanish) in coordination with Mexico’s Secretary of Energy (SENER) and the National Renewable Energy Laboratory (NREL) carried out a survey within the Latin American region, in order to understand the main necessities of each country regarding distributed generation deployment. The primary roles of the participants includes: energy officers, policy makers, technical advisors, utility representatives, regulators, DG integrators, research and others. The main areas of interest identified by the survey participants are listed below:

- DG Drivers
  1. Cost-effective DG
  2. DG Capacity Targets
  3. Electrification of rural areas
- DG Barriers
  1. Access to finance (local or other)
  2. Utility Concerns (technical, DG compensation)
  3. Local rules and permitting
- Useful Support for DG Objectives
  1. Legislative DG policy-making support (targets, incentives)
  2. Utility rate design for DG
  3. Utility assistance with planning for DG deployment
  4. Technical integration of DG into the grid
